

25th February 2021

Greetings all

Week four has ended and the students are nicely settled to their learning. We are following our overriding theme of creation looking at Animals and it is great seeing some of the things the students are getting into. Feel free to ask them about what they are learning about animals in class - could make for some interesting discussions.

We also have a focus at KingsView on character development and this week we have had a few instances to teach the children how to be kind to each other. One of these happened on Wednesday when the Room 2 students had a shared lunch. The parents all did a wonderful job of sending their children to school with lots to share and at one point there were plenty of full tummies and plenty of food left over. (Reminds me of the loaves and fishes story in the bible.) The Room 2 children decided to serve Room 3 with the food they had rather than keep it for later and we had a lovely little procession of students into the other class serving and being kind - just what we like to see.

Next Tuesday we will have the Year 4-8 athletic sports at the Events Centre, all parents are welcome to attend. A few parents are serving as helpers - many thanks for this.

Students of the week

I've been really impressed with Abby Batstone and Noah Bray this week. They have been writing a thriller. They agree on the chapter storyline and then each one writes that storyline from their own perspective, so they have 2 versions of the same story - It's very good and worth celebrating. Well done to those two.
